

Contents

Acknowledgments	xi
Preface	xii
1 Branded! The Unexpected Consequences of Successful
Global Branding	1
Seemingly Improbable Corporate Events	2
From Branding to Branded!	6
The Basics of Certification Systems	10
Profile 1.1. A Corporate Cautionary Tale: The Story of Nike	11
Why Do Businesses Engage?	15
The Critical Three-Way Combination	17
Development Stages for Certification Systems	18
Profile 1.2. An NGO Cautionary Tale: The Story of Green Seal	19
The Voices of Fundamental Opposition	24
The Rest of the Book	25
2 Redefining Corporate Social and Environmental
Accountability for the 21 st Century	27
A Brief History of Corporate Social Responsibility	27
Critique of Corporate Social Responsibility	28
Re-specification of CSR for the 21 st Century	30
Profile 2.1. Internet Instruments for Corporate Accountability:
The Business and Human Rights Resource Centre	32
Profile 2.2. Rebuilding a Company Around Corporate Social
Accountability... and Winning! The Marks & Spencer Story	35
Collaborative Governance and Capitalism 3.0	38
3 Leveraging the Brand: The Essence of Ethical Business Campaigns	43
Factors behind the Emergence of Market Campaigns	43
Promoting a Race to the Top	47
Profile 3.1. Speaking Truth to Power:
Michael Marx and the Evolution of Corporate Market Campaigns	48
Profile 3.2. The Making of a Market Campaigner:
Michael Brune of Rainforest Action Network	54
Market Campaigns in a Broader Context: The Power of NGOs	55
Reflections	59

4	Birth of It All: Transforming the Global Forest Products Industry	61
	The Issues	61
	Birth of the Forest Stewardship Council	63
	Building Corporate Engagement	67
	Profile 4.1. Richard Z. Donovan and the Rainforest Alliance SmartWood Program	68
	Profile 4.2. Building Support for FSC Success: Bruce Cabarle and WWF-US	73
	Results	79
	Profile 4.3. FSC and the Amazon: Roberto S. Waack of Grupo Orsa	83
	Institutional Maturation of the FSC	88
	Profile 4.4. Building a Mature Global Forest Products Certification System: Heiko Liedeker of the FSC	92
	Reflections	95
5	Tapping the Ethic of “Fairness”:
	Certifying Global Commodity Trade	97
	Basic Notions of Fair Trade (The Issues? Background?)	98
	Certified Fair Trade	101
	Profile 5.1. Building Fair Trade into Corporate Culture: Bob Stiller of Green Mountain Coffee Roasters	104
	Certified Fair Trade in the US	107
	Results	111
	Profile 5.2. Paul Rice and TransFair USA: An NGO that “Works at the Speed of Business”	112
	Profile 5.3. Taking Fair Trade to the Consumer: The Wild Oats Story	116
	Reflections	117
6	Even the Banks Can Do It! New Accountability in Global Finance	121
	The Issues	122
	Campaigns and Results	127
	Profile 6.1. Bringing “Charismatic Commitment” to the World Bank Group: Rachel Kyte	133
	Profile 6.2. Caught in the Cross-Hairs, Responding with Flair: Pamela Flaherty of Citigroup	140
	Reflections	143
	Profile 6.3. Pioneers in the Implementation of the New Banking Standards: Matt Arnold and Sustainable Finance Ltd.	144
7	Can Tourism Be Tamed? Toward a Sustainable
	Tourism Stewardship Council	149
	The Issues	150

Certification in the Tourism Sector	154
Profile 7.1. Building the Ethic of Sustainable Ecotourism: Martha Honey of the International Ecotourism Society and the Center for Ecotourism and Sustainable Development	156
Profile 7.2. Certified Ecotourism Pioneer: Karen Lewis of Lapa Rios Ecolodge	159
Reflections	164
Profile 7.3. Building Global Tourism Certification: Tensie Whelan, CEO of Rainforest Alliance	165
8 Accountability Comes to Mining: Building an Assurance Process	169
The Issues	170
The Campaign	171
Profile 8.1. Leading the Jewelry Industry Toward Greater Sustainability: Michael Kowalski of Tiffany & Co.	174
Profile 8.2. Forging the “No Dirty Gold” Campaign: Payal Sampat of Earthworks	183
Reflections	186
9 Can Certification Systems Reduce Global Poverty?	187
Building Assets and Alleviating Poverty	187
Profile 9.1. Community-based Indigenous Success under the FSC: The Story of San Juan Nuevo	195
Responses to the Challenges	202
Reflections	205
10 Certification Opportunities and Challenges Encountered in Other Arenas: Fisheries, Toxics, and Labor	207
The Marine Stewardship Council	212
Profile 10.1. Rebuilding the Core of Well-Managed Fisheries: Rupert Howes at the MSC	217
Certifying Labor Practices in the Apparel Industry	219
Profile 10.2. Tackling the Tough Job of Factory Auditing: Heather White, founder of Verité	228
Campaigns Against Toxics	230
Profile 10.3. Stripping Electronics of Its “Clean” Veneer: Ted Smith of the Silicon Valley Toxics Coalition	232
Reflections	239
11 Industry Push Back, and the Failure of Second-Party Certification Efforts	241
Challenging NGO Legitimacy	242
Industry-Led Certification Systems	243
Reflections	253

12	The Mother of All Campaigns: Taking on Wal-Mart and the Looming Domination of Big-Box Retail Stores	255
	Big-Box Retail	255
	Focus on Wal-Mart	257
	The Issues	258
	The Campaign	263
	Profile 12.1. Justin Ward of Conservation International's Center for Environmental Leadership in Business	266
	Results	274
	Reflections	283
13	Struggles on the Frontier: Are There Limits to the "Certification Revolution"?	287
	What Do You Do with Campaigns That Seem To Go Nowhere?	287
	Is There a Risk that the Concept of Certification Will Be Diluted?	290
	Are There Market Structures Where the Certification Revolution Is Less Likely To Be Effective?	290
	How Critical Is Consumer Consciousness and Direct Consumer Demand?	291
	How Does This New Form of Market-Based Governance Interact with Traditional Modes of Regulation?	292
	Who Watches the Watchers, Certifies the Certifiers?	292
	How Do Certification Systems Become Financially Sustainable?	293
	Can Nonprofit Organizations Learn to Function at the Speed of Business?	294
	Can the Advocacy NGO Community Remain Committed to Certification as Its Success Grows?	295
	Can the Certification Revolution Avoid Discriminating against the Global South?	296
	Notes	298
	Index	323
	About the Author	335