

Contents

Acknowledgments	xiii
Foreword, by Herman Daly	xv
Introduction	xvii
Chapter 1: My Journey to Genuine Wealth	1
Learning about natural capital and sustainability	2
Encouraged by pioneering reports	4
Beginning the work in Canada	8
Chapter 2: The Language of Wealth and Economics	15
What is wealth?	15
What is value?	20
What does it mean to be genuine and have Genuine Wealth?	21
What is an economy?	22
Chrematistics (money) or oikonomia (life)	23
What does it mean to be competitive?	25
What is capital?	26
Life capital	26
Chapter 3: What's Wrong with the Picture of Progress?	27
The Genuine Progress Indicator (GPI)	30
Making money, growing poorer	34
The Alberta GPI	39
Chapter 4: A Renaissance in Economics and Capitalism	51
Economic ethics of ancient Israel	51
China's xiaokang philosophy of moderation	53
The European Middle Ages: An age of moderation	54
The birth of accounting: Luca Pacioli	55
Awakening the true soul of capitalism?	57
Capitalism as a religion and spirit?	61
A way forward	64

Chapter 5: The Genuine Wealth Model	65
Philosophical foundations	66
A practical tool for measuring well-being	67
Examining our values, principles and virtues	67
What is the good life?	68
A taxonomy of needs, wants, wealth and poverty	69
Distinguishing between means and ends	71
The five capitals of Genuine Wealth	74
Accounting for the five capitals of Genuine Wealth.	77
The Genuine Wealth Assessment life-cycle.	78
Chapter 6: Personal Genuine Wealth	89
Conducting a Personal Genuine Wealth Assessment	89
Taking the Personal Genuine Wealth Survey	91
What the Inuit taught me about genuine wealth	94
Why not ask the children?	97
Kate Kaemerle's story	98
My own story of Genuine Wealth	105
Your story	107
Chapter 7: The Genuine Wealth of Communities and Nations	109
Finding genuine wealth in Leduc, Alberta	110
Leduc Genuine Well-being indicators and indices	114
What I learned from Leduc.	123
The wisdom and genuine wealth of the Inuit of Nunavut	124
Santa Monica: A sustainable city in the making	129
China's xiaokang society: An economy of moderation.	132
Emilia Romagna: An economy of cooperation.	134
Bhutan's Gross National Happiness	137
A vision of an economy of Genuine Wealth for Canada	140
Canadian Index of Well-being: Measuring what matters.	145
Conclusion.	146
Chapter 8: Genuine Wealth for Business and Organizations	147
What is the purpose of an enterprise or business?	148
Applying the Genuine Wealth model to business	153
The future of business that builds Genuine Wealth.	158
The cooperative business enterprise	166
BALLE: Business Alliance for Local Living Economies	170

Ways forward 172

Chapter 9: Money and Genuine Wealth 175

 The lights go on. 175

 Our relationship with money 179

 What is money? 181

 Why do we want money so badly? 184

 How is money created? 184

 The role of the central bank in money creation 190

 The origins of usury: Charging interest on money 196

 Towards genuine money and banking 198

 Genuine Wealth banking and money 200

Chapter 10: The Economics of Happiness 215

 The monetary value of happiness 216

 Does money buy happiness? 216

 Does consuming more of nature buy more happiness? 222

 Does more income buy more happiness? 223

 Can we ever have enough money? 226

 Why the sudden interest in the economics of happiness? 226

Epilogue 229

Glossary 233

Bibliography 238

Endnotes 253

Index 258

About the Author 267